

Crown Point Press Release

Crown Point Press is pleased to announce the relocation of its gallery to a new street-level space in its historic building. The move marks a new chapter in the gallery's history while keeping it rooted in the creative community and continuing its acclaimed exhibition program.

The gallery space is now open to the public and is located at 657 Howard Street next door to neighbors Goethe Institut SF and Berggruen Gallery. The new location offers greater visibility and a more focused, flexible format for presenting work while maintaining Crown Point's longstanding engagement with collectors, curators, artists, and visitors.

To inaugurate the space, Crown Point Press will present its most recent projects with Laura Owens, Ed Ruscha, Hilary Pecis, and Rupy C. Tut.
